All Hallow E'en. THE FIRST DAY OF WINTER-BOW THE FIRST OF NOVEMBER WAS CELEBRATED IN THE

OLDEN TIME-THEN AND NOW. With the first day of November comes the first day of winter. In England three cen-turies ago the first of November was deemed the initial-day of winter. The fruits from thoroughfare are glad to see the work comthe orchard, the crops from the fields, were menced. garnered up; and the piles of fuel rearing their pyramidal heads around the homes of olden times gave them an aspect of comfort Beethoven Hall last night, much to the rethat seemed to say defiantly, "Blow! old gret of the members. Boreas!" The gloom of November and the approaching frosts and snows were forgotapproaching frosts and snows were forgotten and unbeeded in the merry family circle

The Conservative tickets for this district
The Conservative tickets for this district around the cheerful blazing winter's fire. Three hundred years ago an English poet

"The wrathful winter hast ning on apace
With blust ring blast hath y barred the treen,
And old Saturnus, with his fresty face.
With chilling cold hath pierced the tender sang:

The mantle's rent, wherein unwrapped been The g'adsome groves that now lay o'er hrown, The tape's torn and each tree blown down."

And the force of those lines may be felt as keenly to-day as did the men of that epoch. Winter, we are told, was a season more devoted to self-communion in our "grand-father's days" than now. Then the industry of the other seasons guaranteed abundance for winter, and even pature rested from her activity. The genial fire enlivened with laughter, music, the reading or tales of adventure, made our ancestors oblivious to the stern world outside. Welcome was the minstrel, or he who could relate in song or story the chivalric deeds of men and women of ages much farther in the buried past.

November Day, as the first day was called, was celebrated by our forefathers, we are told, as a day of rejoicing and festivity-for the harvest produce just gathered and the opening of the boliday season-a season of jubilee. The young of both sexes gathered together on this evening and performed a great variety of tricks and games, many of them pretending to develop heart-secrets in the recesses of futurity. These tricks and games were not confined to any one country in Europe, but were general till driven away by the colder sway of professional utilitarianism and selfi-hness, such as rule America to-day. People were not then bothered about candidates or elections. No cases of death from starvation, no suicides, no murders, no seductions, no divorces, characterized those bygone times. Then there was much happiness and plentiness; then, if they were less enlightened, they were more charitable and less vicious. Thousands of our readers will no doubt echo that yearning for the restoration of the sports, pastimes, and unselfishness of the olden time-features that may never be seen again.

Surmety was a favorable dish to introduce the winter with. It was made of new wheat, plump and round, boiled in sweet milk till the grains cracked and the liquid became a jelly, when the mass was piled on to dishes and sweetened to taste. Colcannon was a favorite dish in Ireland, and was composed of a large boiler of pared potatoes, turnips, parsnips, &c., boiled well together, strained and pounded with sweet milk, butter, and fragrant heros, the first of that autumn's saving. It is said to have been a delicious dish, and one on which monarch might sup with infinite gusto. The homeless and friendless had a cordia invitation to those festal celebrations, and the hospitalities awarded to strangers was a feature of such a festival. After supper the vounger members of the family and their juvenile neighbors congregated in some well-regulated, well-ventilated, welllighted barn and performed a host of tricks amusing and prophetic. Snap-apple was one-a decidedly favorite amusement. Two cross-sticks were suspended from the rafters by a cord just long enough to bring the cross-sticks on a level with the operator's nose. At two ends of the cross-sticks two lighted candles were secured, and to the other two ends two large apples. The operator (with bis hands secured behind his back) was required to snap one of the apples in his or her mouth, but to the great amusement of the lookerson the operator would get the candle there oftener than the apple. Diving was another of the games of that day. It was simply pitching large apples into tubs filled with water, and the divers. bared to the waist, catch them with the mouth and teeth. Some were so expert as to raise a small silver coin from the bottom of the tub by the sole aid of their lips and teeth. Great amusement was evoked when the head of the timid diver was immersed in the cold waters of the diving-vat.

Lead-melting was another of the games of that day. Each youth and maiden would melt in a crucible a portion of lead, and when melted, pour it into a basin through a new wedding-ring. The lead assumes grotesque shapes, which, in the eyes of the village crones, indicate the life, calling, history, and end of the beau or sweetheart of the operator.

Nut-cracking was an old and favorite sport. Two nuts are named for two of the company-a male and female-placed on a hot pan, and the constancy or inconstancy of the youthful pair is indicated by the burning or cracking and separation of the burning nuts.

This is the night when fairies befoul the fruit that remains ungatifered on the trees; the night when mischievous spirits play cruel pranks on young men going home late from the frolic. Many were found astride of a hobgoblin, and after being carried over the most dangerous paths and places, 'till the cock crows, were cast into a pile of briars or brambles, to the evident discomfiture of their clothing and many abrasures of their cuticles. Thousands of tales were rife with soul-stirring adventures on Hallow e'en, as November night has been called. These adventures among the good old warlocks have been driven away by modern spiritualism, the electric telegraph and the locomotive. November Day is, in the Catholic Church, called "All-Saints Day," and is set apart by the Church to the honor of the whole troupe of saints that chant Alleluias before the Eternal Throne.

Statistics. - The following are the statistics for the month of October, as presented by the clerk of the Hustings Court: Number of marriage licenses issued, 8-4 white and 4 colored: number of deeds recorded, 18showing a slight decrease in the number of marriage licenses and a decrease in the number of deeds recorded, as compared with the statistics for the month preceding. Colored Military.—The colored military of this city went over to the Fair-Grounds yesterday to contest for the prize offered for the best-drilled colored military company. They were under command of Captain Cunningham, and presented a fine appearance when marching down Hull street. The Approaching Reunion.—The Elliott Hall Wednesday. This affair promises to be a notable event, and a number of old soldiers will participate. A meeting will be held at the Mayor's-Court room to-night to make final arrangements for the reand dispussed the debt question. Several, colored politicians addressed the meeting. Towards the close one of the speakers, who had begun the discussion, wanted to speak again. But the crowd did not seem anxious hear bim, and the result was the meeting broke up in confusion.

The Free-Bridge Walkway.-Yesterday work was commenced towards repairing the walkway between the Danville-railroad arch and the Free bridge. The material used for the purpose was donated to the city of Manchester by the Free-Bridge commissioners some time ago. The walkway has been in a very dangerous condition several months. and ne doubt those who travel along that

At the request of Mr. Samuel B. Rayland, the At the request of air. Saile, on the premises, on owner, I will offer for saile, on the premises, on THURSDAY the 6th day of November, 1879, at 4 o'clock P. M., that VERY VALUABLE BRICKo'clock P. M. that VERY VALUABLE BRUKE-CLAY PROPERTY abo e described, with the im-provements theron. This property has a double value—first, from its eligible location to the city of Richmond, being within five hundred yards of the southern terminus of the Free bridge, consequently the describility for building purposes: second, it southern terminus of the Free bridge, consequently its desirability for building purposes; second, it has upon it an area or bulk of the best quality of brick clay sufficient to make not less than 12.000,000 bricks, the removal of which would reduce the present surface of the property to the level of the four streets by which it is bounded, thus really enhancing its value and at the same time bringing a handsome revenue from the yearly sale of the clay. Adjoining this property there are already three brick-yards without clay upon them, and this property being near thereto, the clay upon it will no doubt be brought into immediate use. The improvements are a FRAME DWELLING with eight rooms besides closets; kitchen with lour rooms; a rooms besides closels; kitchen with four rooms; a good stable, &c The yard is surrounded by a boxwood hedge, enclosing several magnificent shadetrees.

This sale presents inducements rarely offered at public auction, and should therefore altract the attention of brick-makers and others looking out for
